To The Students and Faculty of Maryland State Teachers College, Bowie, Maryland -

It will always give me great pleasure to think of someone of your number sitting in the quiet of your beautiful college library reading room feasting his eyes upon the exquisite beauty spots that are to be found in this rare set of color prints of garden flowers.

It gives me even greater pleasure now to entertain the hope that such experiences may inspire you one and all to help President Jones to transfer many of these beauty spots from the pages of this rare book to the potentially beautiful campus of your college.

May your increasingly intelligent, cooperative and faithful labors in due time make your campus one of the rarest beauty spots in the historic Commonwealth of Maryland. At least this book can but symbolize the beauty which your labors can - and I hope will - make possible, not only on this campus but in the cottage homes of all who his own mental and spiritual freedom.

With freedom of the body came the time to test and explore the mind and opportunity for expression and recognition of those things akin to the spirit. A babe of a race was turned loose to keep step with the firm, steady, assured strides of an established order. Small wonder prejudice calls the Negro "inferior". Give him time, Just as he has become a part of the civilization into which he was thrust, his mind and feeling were influenced by those things which surrounded him. The minds of America were employed with varieties of businesses, professions and sciences. The Negro grasped wherever his hands could get a firm hold. Feeling had given appreciable expressions in music, painting, sculpturing and literature. The Negro has grown by leaps and bounds in outward expression of inward sight and feeling. Fortunately for him and those associated with him he brought with his first tottering steps of freedom, keenness of mind to radiate upon and attach itself to almost every type of enterprise existing, and wealth of spirit and feeling capable of absorbing and reflecting from the sublime principles of the Nazarene to the frenzied expression called "swing", as well as to painting, sculpture, literature and music.

The order of the day demands that any achievement to gain recognition must be superior to all others in that field. The Negro must not because of his short period of freedom blind himself by the dark glasses of "race pride", but must give honest evaluation of achievement in terms of national and world standards.

NEGRO HISTORY WEEK OBSERVANCE

Dr. Alain Locke of Howard University was the initial speaker in our observance of Negro History Week. On Sunday, February 5, Dr. Locke addressed the school at vespers on "Art Appreciation." Miss Howard was the sponsor.

On Tuesday, February 7, Miss Pratt was in charge of the program centered around Negro poetry. Participants were Mary Privott, Hermmeda Gwynn, Daphine Resin, Sarah Carroll, Nellie Hall and Thelma Hawkins.

The demonstration school featured Negro spirituals, poems by Negroes, and a presentation of facts that they had learned about famous Negroes. Mr. Brown, Mrs. Lorschelle and Miss Throckmorton were in charge.

Little Mary Francis Jackson of the third grade delighted the audience with her reading of Dunbar's "Little Brown Baby".

Mr. Clark was the sponsor of Friday's program dealing with "The Negro in Education." Participants were: Margie Harmon, Francis Sewall, Auline Bennett, Everett Pettigrew, Lucy Satchell, and Leopold Smith.

The observance ended Sunday, February 12, with a program dealing with the theme, "The Negro in Music," directed by Mrs. Law. Those who helped to make the concluding offering a success were Edna Griffith, Harriet Brown, Bernice Brown, Lillie Dennis, Corinne Smyth, Victoria Jenkins, Helen Butler, Bertha Jackson, and Nellie Wilson. The glee club offered selections.

DR. TRIGG IS VESPER SPEAKER

Dr. Charles Young Trigg, pastor of Metropolitan Methodist Church, Baltimore, was the vespers speaker on Sunday, January 15.

In his preliminary remarks, Dr. Trigg paid tribute to Negro spirituals. Those who are familiar of these compositions and refuse to sing them are misguided, the speaker implied. He declared, "It was no disgrace to be a slave. Slaves made a wonderful record; they made a real contribution to civilization. We as a group have a contribution to make to America—a spiritual contribution."

"Proper use of Time" was the subject of Dr. Trigg's address. Such statements as the following made a lasting impression on the listeners:

"God told Adam and Eve—'Take it (the world) and dress it.' The Moderns seem to interpret the command as 'wreck it and mess it'.

"Thinking is a pain in the mind."

"Life is a choice rather than a chance."

"There is too much waiting for opportunity, waiting for a break."

"You can't fly to fame. You must climb to fame."

CONVERSATION CLUB

The conversation club has been one of the most interesting clubs on the campus. The main purpose is to further the ability to carry on interesting conversation. One of the topics discussed recently was "Advantages of an Opportunity for Higher Education." Mrs. Howard was their guest at the meeting held Sunday, February 27. The topic for discussion was "Student Participation in College Programs."

A panel discussion was held under the direction of Miss Josephine Brown. The members of the panel, Evelyn Duckery, Margie Harmon, Joyce Hudson, Basie Miles, Samuel Fields, Leopold Smith and Robert Mack, discussed various topics which helped in answering the question, "How Can We Help Solve the Interracial Problem?" With the help of the student body and faculty the discussion was a great success.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF TEACHERS' COLLEGES SPONSORS ESSAY CONTEST

Celebrating a century of public teacher education, the American Association of Teachers Colleges is sponsoring an essay contest for undergraduate, graduate students in teachers colleges, normal schools, and departments of education in universities.
A review of Negro business activities in the seventy five year period from 1863 to 1938 reveals to us the directions in which Negroes are headed.

To furnish a broad educational background should be the first objective of every business program. Such a background will make the Negro business man of tomorrow capable of successful leadership.

The second objective of the four year general business program should be to give the student a sound knowledge of business principles, practices and procedures.

The third objective of the educational program should be to prepare the student to organize, to manage and to conduct effectively such businesses as are open to him as a Negro.

The fourth objective of the program should be to prepare students for positions as Managers, Salesmen and Clerks in stores and offices. There are growing openings for such positions in cities of large populations as: Chicago, Gary, Indianapolis, Cleveland, New York and Washington.

Because of lack of funds there are many businesses that Negroes cannot enter and successfully operate. In spite of his handicaps, the demand for food, shelter, and clothing of the 12,000,000 Negroes in America is sufficient to give to Negroes employment in retail stores and service establishments which can usually be operated with little expense.

In spite of consciousness and insufficient funds Negro business has been successful in many cases. This is particularly true of the South, where the Negro was forced to patronize his own business.

The following trade associations which were organized by the Negro are evidences of the certain but slow progress of the Negro in business.

Established
1. National Negro Business League...... 1910
3. Associated Negro Press, 1919
4. National Beauty Culturists League 1921
5. National Negro Insurance Association 1921
6. Independent National Funeral Directors Ass., 1924

In 1923 the National Negro Business League established several C.M.A. (Colored Merchants Associations) grocery stores in New York and other states. This made it possible for Negro grocers to compete with owners of chain grocery stores conducted by whites in Negro neighborhoods. This attempt ended in failure in 1934, mostly because of the depression; nevertheless it shows the effect of cooperation among Negroes.

The failure of many Negro business men to reach success seems to be due to poor leadership and lack of intelligent understanding of buying and selling. Properly trained Negro business men need not stand in fear of finding opportunities in the future, even in fields that seemed impossible in former years.

THE NEGRO PERFORMS

Given a vast panorama named "The Negro Theater," what passes in array? The stage with its dramatic artists, directors, orchestras, dancers and artists of voice and instrument and the motion picture, with its similar parade, is the answer.

"Run Little Children," written by Halle Johnson, directed by Clarence Muse had passed the 100,000 attendance mark at the beginning of the year. "Androcles and the Lion" is one of the finest, most forcefully dramatic plays ever to grace the boards of the aging Lafayette. It is amusing, it is timely, it is beautifully staged and well directed, and its acting is as flawless as a superb all Negro cast can make it"-Opportunity.

William Du Bois' "Hniti", Theodore Ward's "Big White Fox", Dodson's, "The Divine Comedy" and the Harlem Shunt Case Theatre's, "Don't You Want To Be Free?" are vivid examples of the Negro movement of self expression in drama. Louise Beavers, Fredi Washington and Ethel Watts are outstanding contributors to the true interpretation of these expressions.

"GOD SEND TO NEGRO ACTORS"

FEDERAL THEATRE PROJECT A

The Federal Theatre Project has given innumerable opportunities for employment of Negroes.

Many worth while accomplishments have been made in building up the Negro performers and play writers and preparing them for Broadway and screen performances.

One of the outstanding productions was the portraying of "Macbeth" by a black man, Jack Carter, the conquering "Christophe," the powerful and mysterious "Conjure Man."

Some of the outstanding plays are: "Big Blow", "One Third of a Nation", Sing Out the News," "Initi" and "Androcles and the Lion."

The gift of the concert stage is Marian Anderson. Shining in their particular orbits are Roland Hayes and Paul Robeson.

The highest paid Negro performers in the world are Bill Robinson, king of tap dancers; Louis Armstrong, king of swing; and Maxine Sullivan, queen of "Swing Classic" Fats Waller, Cab Calloway, Noble Sissle, Duke Ellington, Claude Hopkins, Fletcher Henderson and...

"The study of science", says J. S. Mill, teaches young men to think, while study of the classics teaches them to express thought. If this be true, the Negroes are proud of their thinking men.

There are several persons of our race who have contributed greatly in the field of science. Our foremost scientist was born in 1864 near Diamond Grave, Missouri. He obtained his early education from a spelling book, and, after the age of ten, he attended a rural school. After many years of hard work, he entered college. He received his Bachelor's and Master's degrees from Iowa State College. He has done much research work, from which he has discovered over a hundred products from the sweet potato, sixty articles (usable) from the pecan, and extracted dyes from Southern clays. George Washington Carver is still doing outstanding work at Tuskegee.

Dr. Carver is not the only scientist of our race. Dr. Ernest Everett Just is considered one of the best known scientists of this country. He is the author of a book on cytology, which was published in 1924. He is editor of the Protoplasma (journal) and of the official organ of the Maine Biological Society, and was a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He is also a member of the American Association of the Advancement of Science-Margie Harmon Turner, a native of Maryland. He was a special investigator for the United States Department of Agriculture in Maine in 1918 and is the author of Mineral Nutrition of Plants. He is also a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Another outstanding person is Thomas Wyatt Turner, a native of Wyoming. He was a special investigator for the United States Department of Agriculture in Maine in 1918 and is the author of "The Pursuit of the Perfect, Then, Is the Pursuit of Sweetness and Light."
INTERVIEW WITH DR. WOODSON

The students and faculty here at State were highly honored to have as their guest speaker on January 22 Dr. Carter G. Woodson, who spoke on "The Religious Development of the Negro".

Dr. Woodson kindly permitted an interview to a staff teacher. The interview follows in question and answer:

1. Why do you think some Negroes have an aversion to their African background?

"Ignorance," was the conclusion. "Many Negroes do not appreciate their background because they are ignorant of the things which have constituted their background."

2. Do you find it difficult to collect data?

"Yes, very hard at times. The white man who writes articles and books reports only the unfavorable side."

3. Do you often find failures or disappointments in your study?

"I often find many disappointments," answered Dr. Woodson. He spent three months in research on some data concerning the Negro and found only three essays. "But", continued Dr. Woodson, "disappointments in one respect often result in my finding a wealth of material for which I had not been searching."

He cited an interesting example of the former assertion. "After I finished school I decided to write a book on education of the Negro since the Civil War. I knew that if I were to write about the period since the Civil War I must have a background, that is data on education prior to the Civil War. I spent months and months on this research, found a wealth of material, and became so interested that I wrote my book on "Education of the Negro Prior to 1861."

4. Why do you think that the Negro does not progress as rapidly as he might?

"The Negro does not have much power," declared Dr. Woodson. "If we had more economic power we could have more political power and thereby get more done."

5. Do you think that race prejudice is the only factor which enters into non-publication of Negro achievements along with the history of the nation though his contributions were and are numerous?

"Race prejudice is a great factor; but intellectual prejudice also enters in. The Northern Whites will sit down to the table with Negroes and eat, but that is only pity they feel. They look on the Negro and say, "Poor thing. They don't know what they are doing."

6. What suggestions would you give to prospective teachers for the study of Negro history in the elementary schools? Stated Dr. Woodson, "There is no hope of teaching Negro History except in having the children read in supplementary books. The teacher could not give a course. However, the child should be taught to appreciate his own people from the time he is on his mother's knees."

7. How did you become interested in study of Negro History?

"When I sat under the professors at Harvard and the University of Chicago I noticed that they always paid great tribute to other races, but everything was bad about the Negro-I wondered why it was that these black people who constituted about one seventh of the world had never done anything commendable. I became a doubting Thomas and thought that I would like to find out if these things were true; S. Carroll

THE NEGRO IN INDUSTRY

- Even though a well-developed color line prevails, certain industries are open to the Negro. Among them are the chain grocery store, holstery, bakery, department store, bottling, laundry, dairy, meat packing, ice cream, engineering, commission merchant and transfer. Despite his limitation the Negro has made much progress in industry over the last decade.

OUR NEW BEAUTY SALON

Many columns have been written about the beauty and modern improvements of Bowie but nothing has been said about the new beauty salon.

Perhaps many of us are taking it as a matter of course. But to me, an old timer, it is the answer to a maiden's prayer, especially when I stop to think of the inconveniences I suffered here trying to improve my coifure during the summers of '23, '25, '27.

On Saturday we were permitted to go down in the laundry to put on the finishing touches for the weekend, provided that we had a coal oil burner or a can of sterno. There we proceeded to pull and smoke out as many of the kinks as possible. The process began with a shampoo in the laundry tub which was a back breaking ordeal. Next came the pulling and smoking. Many times our scalps were dirtier after this treatment than they were before, due to the fact that the stove was bound to smoke; consequently, the soot was transferred by the comb to our hair.

In comparison, our beauty salon is a perfect paradise with its green and orchid walls, its spacious wash bowls, its sprays and electric drier, and its electric stoves. All of this modern equipment however, would be of little service to us without our efficient beautician, Mrs. Edna Stanford. Just mention your style and leave it to her skilled hands to turn out a perfect masterpiece. I just think of it, girls, a shampoo, press and any fancy hair style all for two bits and a dime. Where else could you buy so much beauty for so little?

BOWIE PRESENTS MISS MAYLE IN RECITAL

"Through every pulse the music steals, and holds sublime communion with the soul; wrung from the coyest breast the imprisoned sigh, and kindled rapture in the coldest eye" — Montgomery.

These conditions were actually brought to reality as a result of a musical recital given by Miss Bessie H. Ward, accompanied by Dorothy Elliott at the piano, in the Bennoke auditorium on Wednesday, January 11.

Miss Mayle, a lyric soprano, is a graduate of Spelman College and Boston University and is touring under the sponsorship of a Rosenwald Fellowship. Tuckerman's quotation, "The tones of human voices are mightier than strings or brass to move the heart," can well be used to describe the pleasing and impressive voice of Miss Mayle.

She is not only an outstanding singer but also a writer, having received an award for creative writing at Spelman College. Many of her poems have been published in such periodicals as the Crisis and the Spelman Messenger.

SHADES OF NIGHT STEAL ACROSS THE SKY

And in the blackness of the night,
A glimmering star creeps out.

The wind blows long and hard
And I in my cottage by the road
Gaze out upon this sight.

Slowly the old moon makes its appearance,
The snow covered hillsides gaily dance and glisten. It's then I know that winter has come.

For a breezy unknown visitor unlatches my door And makes himself my cold companion. Then I must view my hearth and its dying embers.

And as that unexpected guest has entered
And from me taken the warmth, So has entered age and taken my only lamp.

The lamp of memories it has taken
When free from care and toil I gladly played in my childish way.

But now as the crescent moon and glistening stars Have vanished from my sight So have vanished my best beloved childhood days.

PRACTICE TEACHING

Even if December and January did bring some very bad weather, the senior practice teachers didn't falter in their work. On some mornings the ground was covered with snow, the wind was blowing strong and the roads were even covered with ice, but what did this group care? They took it with a smile and kept in mind Dunbar's words, "Keep Plugging Away."

From the whole hearted cooperation of our critic teachers in the various practice centers and the supervision of our instructors, we feel that we have gained a very clear knowledge as to how to meet some of the various problems of rural teachers. We are eagerly hoping that we shall soon be out again facing and becoming better acquainted with the situations of the rural schools.

CONVERSATION CLUB PRESENTS

MISS YARD

Miss Molly Yard, who went to China last spring as a delegate with a group of American students on invitation of Chinese students, in a moving speech on February 27, gave us first hand information concerning China and her problems.

"The three principles of the people that have been the backbone and background of everything China has done are (1) Chinese nationalism, (2) democracy, and (3) the livelihood of the people", declared Miss Yard. These principles, it seems, have existed since the overthrow of the old Manchu dynasty during the 1911 revolution that was led by Dr. Sun.

Miss Yard observed that China is exciting now because of such activities as reforestation projects, the building of schools and hospitals, and the setting up of airlines. "But", emphasized the speaker, "the most important things in China are the Christian attitude of the people toward Japan and the rest of the world, the mass education movement, and a growing democracy."

During the discussion following the speech, Miss Yard expressed the belief that the Chino-Japanese war could be stopped within a year, probably in six months, if the United States would boycott Japan. An embargo on war materials and supplies furnished by America would be the deciding factor.

Miss Yard was presented by the Conversation Club.

GRACIOUS LIVING CLUB HAS FORMAL

Saturday, March 18, the Gracious Living Club held a formal reception. Mrs. Mary W. Law was their guest of honor.
EXCHANGES

We, as students, should and must learn to express our thoughts, opinions, and attitudes.

We must feel free to say or write what we want. However, let our opinions be sane and helpful for our welfare and the school's welfare. Once we get an idea or policy working, let us unite, and thru tactful methods and ceaseless efforts work for its realization. So we must convince the administration, the student council and ourselves that we are serious and determined. We should use forums, discussions, and the Script to express our ideas and attitudes. We are men, not mice.

HAMPTON SCRIPT

Nothing To Do -
What shall I do when I have nothing to do? When you have nothing to do, do that nothing well; invest in some sleep, healthful recreation, or helpful reading. To tell the truth there really is never a time when you have nothing to do.

IRONSIDES ECHO

We must be strong, for there is much to suffer.
We must be brave for there is much to dare.
We must be a friend of all, the foe, friendless;
We must be giving and forget the gift.
We must be humble, for we know our weaknesses
We must look up, and laugh, and love and lift

The members of the Handicraft Club are making shirts, blouses, caps, pajamas and dresses (street and party). Mrs. James was the guest speaker at the first tea on Thursday evening, February 23. She gave a timely talk on "Handicraft for the School Child". The club is planning to stage a fashion show early in the spring. Everything to be worn in the show is to be made in the club. The date will be announced in the next issue.

THE POSTER CLUB

The Poster Club, although late beginning work because of the lack of material, is just about ready to begin. The members are planning to enter the Peace Poster contest during the month of March.

Dear Mary,

Cotton white, fluffy, cumulus clouds floated overhead under a sea-blue sky as we gaily turned the nose of "Miles Standish" northward along the historic Hendrick Hudson highway to Albany. The river, up whose valley we were travelling, serenely hurried between its palisades past Jack Frost Sugar and Palisades Park to New York Bay, one of the busiest in the world. Now and then an occasional foot from a brick laden river barge or ferry boat spoke the language of an awakening river world.

As we sped along, "Half Moon", the stout little ship in which Hudson sailed up that same river in 1609, chartered the way. On each lamppost for miles along the high way was perched an iron minature. I thought of the high hopes and hardships its master had experienced in seeking the Northwest passage.

Our first stop was Tarrytown, the home of Washington Irving's immortal "Legend of Sleepy Hollow". The "Old Headless Horseman Bridge" has been replaced by a substantial concrete structure erected by William Rockefeller in 1912. The Hollow is still there beyond the road, below the hill-quiet, secluded, thick bushed. The sleepy brook meandering between the ancient trees seems to come from almost nowhere. It's the kind of place in which spokes could have a merry time.

Upon the hill, behind the church yard fence stands the tiny, vine wrapped "Old Dutch Church" dated 1697. The stops were crumbling, the pews, dusty, out the ghosts or Ichabod, Katrina and Brom Bones still lingered about the place.

Higher up near the heart of the cemetery with an enclosed family grave yard rests the dust of Washington Irving. We counted forty-seven other members of the family sleeping together. Only a plain stone monument marks the grave of him who loved the simple folk of the Hollow-but an American flag rippling softly in the breeze pays ample tribute to his genius.

Do you remember how we used to dial to the Sing-Sing radio program? Casing on the Hudson harbors this trim, gray, stone walled house of misdirected souls. The town itself is unimpressive but the pulse of activity seems to throb around Sing-Sing. We attempted to secure a pass for restricted visitation but were unsuccessful because it was four o'clock. A whistle shrilled, a bell rang, and out hurried young and old employees—shall we say, from jail?

For several hours, we sped by rich, rolling farms and fruit orchards. The thrill of a life time was experienced when a sign read "Hyde Park, Head". I won't attempt to describe the stately mansion of Franklin Delano Roosevelt, but it is most impressive. Near the Vanderbilt estate on the edge of town, in a semi-secluded, peaceful spot stands the red brick unpretentious St. James' Church erected in 1844 and "attended by Franklin D. Roosevelt, 32nd President of the United States and his Family."

The tall lighted buildings of Albany were sighted at ten p.m. through a heavily falling rain. A previously checked road map guide informed us of tourist cabins five miles south of Albany. We decided to find the cabins five miles south of Albany. We decided to find the cabins before exploring Albany in spite of the late hour and rain.

The bridge crossing the Hudson to Albany on the West bank is almost like a Chinese puzzle. We wound round and round before successfully discovering an exit. A cobble stone hill had to be climbed before the level spot on which the Capitol rests was reached. Why do they erect such a series of steps to Capitol entrances? It seemed that hundreds of steps led up to the mighty glass doors. Refusing the challenge of my companion, those steps however, were not climbed.

Tomorrow we plan to leave early for the Mohawk and Niagra. When you hear from us again, we expect to have beheld the glory of the "Falas".

Your vagabond friend,

Millred Lewis Pindell

TEACHER - The South is such a wet and swampy place. That being true what do you think is grown there?

STUDENT - After hesitating for a while MOSQUITOES.

One senior lady (M.T.) to the librarian; "Miss Prout, I want to check out the library."

One practice teacher (E.L.) to another (L.S.) said, "That teacher doesn't think I know my disciples (decimals)."

Why were the following happy over the week-end? H.E.C. A.T.B. and M. E. H.? Was it because F.B.G. R.L.H. and R.A.H. were on the campus?
