1) KEVA COLBERT PERFORMS IN WALDY STREET

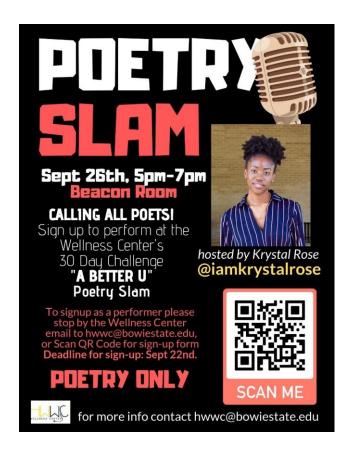

FOX 5
WRITER, DIRECTOR, AND CAST DISCUSS THE DRAMA

Keva Colbert, a Creative Writing student in the Department of Language, Literature, & Cultural Studies, recently performed alongside VH1's Love& Hip-Hop's Willie Taylor in Nalo Merriman's play Waldy Street at the Silver Spring Black Box Theatre. Keva played Ribbon, an outspoken young woman who realizes her ego is getting in the way of achieving her goals. Between long rehearsal days, Keva aided in costume design and participated in interviews promoting the show on local TV and radio.

acting program that visits different schools and cities, teaching children the joys of theatre, writing, and producing their own creative works. Keva's biggest takeaway from being a performing artist and a fulltime student here at BSU is the importance of time management. Keva says there is a phrase used in the Performing Arts world that she will use to ensure she graduate this coming Spring: "To be early is to be on time, to be on time is to be late, and to be late is to be fired."

3) BANNED BOOKS WEEK: SEPTEMBER 22-28

Banned Books Week is a week of events around the country to push back against censorship and celebrate the freedom to read.

This year, the Department of Language, Literature, & Cultural Studies is marking Banned Books Week with a celebration in honor of Toni Morrison, who passed this summer. Dr. Kim Evelyn is coordinating a display at the Thurgood Marshall Library to share information about Banned Books Week and Morrison's most frequently challenged and/or Banned Books: The Bluest Eye (repeatedly challenged/banned since 2006 for being sexually explicit and containing controversial issues), Sula (challenged in 2000 for promoting promiscuity), Beloved (banned for sexual content and violence but restored in Kentucky schools in 2007), and Song of Solomon (banned in Indiana in 2010 for sex, violence, and profanity). If you're in the library, check out the display to learn more.

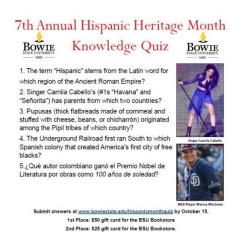

Banned books are usually associated with the censorship of books in the K-12 school system. School boards, parents, religious or political groups, elected officials, and even teachers and students challenge books, calling for their removal from libraries and curricula for reasons like profanity, sexual content offensive language, and violence. Books are also banned by governments worldwide for being critical of social systems, ideologies, or governments.

Faculty and students are also invited to participate by having class discussions about issues related to the freedom to read. Discussion topics might include the history of laws banning literacy for slaves in the United States, the history of post-emancipation educational inequality, how books are challenged or banned in school systems or by governments around the world, banned/challenged books we have taught or read, the importance of reading and learning to read closely, and censorship and intellectual freedom.

Contact Dr. Kim Evelyn (kevelyn@bowiestate.edu) for details, display sheets, examples of banned books, and other materials.

6) PAID INTERNSHIP OPPORTUNITY: MARYLAND LEGISLATURE

LEGISLATIVE INTERNSHIPS

Each year during the session of the Maryland General Assembly, approximately one hundred students are given the opportunity to serve as legislative interns Upon acceptance into the program, students interview for placement with legislators, comm or caucuses of the Maryland General Assembly (MGA).

ELIGIBILITY

Students presently enrolled in a public or independent college or university are eligible to apply. Students must be at least 18 years of age, have a minimum 3.0 cumulative grade-point average, and show proof of competency in college composition. A student with a lower GPA may participate in the program if recommended by the sponsoring professor and accepted by the MGA Coordinator. Many of the interns are political science majors; however, students working for degrees in other areas, who are interested in learning firsthand about the process of state government, are encouraged to apply

Academic credits must be granted to the interns by their colleges and universities. Additional academic work may be required by the sponsoring professors.

WORK ASSIGNMENTS

The type of work assigned the interns is mainly legislative, although some duties are clerical in nature. Legislative responsibilities may include:

- · Research
- · Writing correspondence
- · Preparing, recording, and reporting testimony
- · Contacting witnesses
- · Attending committee hearings

- · Tracking bills
- · Working on mailings
- · Responding to constituents' inquiries and handling problems
- · Writing newsletters

STIPENDS

A stipend is awarded each intern to help defray the costs of participating in the program. The total session stipend varies, depending on the number of days per week the intern works in Annapolis. To be eligible for the program, a student must be able to work a minimum of two full days each week of session.

- $850 per session = 2 days (15-18 hrs) per week
- $1,250 per session = 3 days (19-26 hrs) per week
- $1,650 per session = 4 days (27-31 hrs) per week
- . $2,000 per session = 5 days (32-40 hrs) per week

SESSION

The General Assembly meets annually for a period of 90 calendar days, beginning the second Wednesday in January and continuing through early April. During the initial months, the busiest days are Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays, with few or no committee hearings scheduled for Mondays or Fridays. Most legislators would like their interns to work the three days from Tuesday through Thursday or full-time. However, realizing the demands of college scheduling, the General Assembly accepts students who are able to work only two days per week.

Since the legislature does not take any holidays during its 90-day session, interns are required to commit themselves to a weekly work schedule and to take no holidays or spring break.

All placements are made during the fall semester, and applications should be received by the MGA Intern Office by October 31. you do not know the contact person for your college/university, please call:
